YANKS FIGHT WITHIN SIGHT OF ROME

Marion Co. Victims of Ship Sinking

CPL. BERNARD McCOMBS

CPL. FRANK E. MIDDAUGH

Two Marion county soldiers, believed to have lost their lives at the same time in the sinking of a troop transport ship by enemy action in Atlantic waters last fall, are pictured above. They are Cpl. Bernard McCombs, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCombs of Merkel avenue, and Cpl. Frank E. Middaugh, 20, whose widow, Mrs. Mary Redman Middaugh, lives at Caledonia. He was a son of George Middaugh of Elk avenue. The ship on which the men were traveling was attacked and sunk last Nov. 27. A report that the men were listed as missing was received by the family of each early in the year and official word of the deaths was received from the war department last week. Detailed stories about both appeared in The Star last week.

War Summary

Harding Lists 246 for Graduation and St. Mary School 26

Classes of 246 seniors at Harding High school and 26 at St. Mary Parochial school are awaiting graduation ceremonies this week-end.

The Harding senior class is one of the smallest in recent years. Principal Albert C. May said the class had been reduced by the armed services draft and war work. A number of students were drafted before progressing far enough to obtain their diplomas while others enlisted before they had completed the required work. Several other students forsook their studies for jobs. Five members of the class now in service will receive their diplomas, Mr. May said.

At St. Mary the class is about average size, the enrollment having dropped in the last several years from an average of over 40 to near 30. Father Francis Ley, assistant pastor at St. Mary Catholic church, said pupils were working after school, but had not quit their studies to accept jobs. Three members of the class are serving in the armed forces.

Harding Class day exercises were scheduled to be held today.

Tomorrow morning Harding seniors will attend the senior breakfast at the Masonic temple. John McKenney will be toastmaster. Speakers will be: Tom McGinnis, senior class president; Arlene Hill, representative senior girl, and Miss Edith Brown of the Harding faculty.

Sophomores and seniors at St. Mary Parochial school will attend 9:00 Mass Sunday morning and from there will go to Hotel Harding where the seniors will be guests of the sophomores at breakfast. Speakers will be Father William J. Spickerman, pastor of St. Mary Catholic church, Orlando Cimarelli, Kent Daum, Virginia Garrett, Nettie Ann Steinmetz and Daniel McGinnis. Robert Winterseller will be toastmaster.

DIES AFTER HITTING CHILD

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON C. H., O., June —James Woodland, 84, toppled over dead last night a moment after he carried out of the street of his native Bloomingburg a girl his automobile had struck. The 6-year-old Janet Streitenberger was not hurt badly. Woodland was the father of Frank D. Woodland, racing secretary at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and known widely in racing circles.

SEE MORE RIGID LABOR CONTROL

WMC and USES To Have Complete Charge, Is Prediction.

A far-reaching extension of war manpower controls that will put the WMC and U. S. Employment Service offices in virtually complete charge of all hiring and movement of workers in industrial areas having labor shortages will go into effect July 1, The Cleveland Plain Dealer said it had learned today from authoritative sources.

Local and state WMC and USES officials, when asked about the program today, said they were not in position to make any comment about the Cleveland story.

High points of the program reported by the Plain Dealer would:

Channel the hiring of all men, regardless of age, under the WMC-USES.

Virtually prohibit the future hiring of men by businesses that have not been declared war essential or locally needed.

Fix employment ceilings on major armament production areas. It is assumed Marion would be included in the armament production areas because it now holds a Group 2 labor area classification under the WMC.

Allot available male labor to concerns given manpower priorities because they are behind schedule in urgently needed war production and divide the remaining workers among employers classed as essential or locally needed.

It is expected the program will limit employers in the number of persons they can hire, and any male entering the labor market or changing jobs will be limited in the number of places he can be hired.

ENGINEER DEPOT WORKER INJURED

Man Who Served with Navy in War Hurt in Fall.

Warren Douce of 351 South Grand avenue narrowly escaped fatal injury yesterday when he fell from a height while working on construction at the Marion Engineer depot. He suffered chest contusion, shock, a fractured right wrist, severe bruises and a gash in his forehead which was closed with stitches at City hospital where he was admitted for treatment.

He was reported to have fallen more than 20 feet to a pavement. His condition was reported as fair at the hospital today.

Receiving a medical discharge from the U. S. Navy last November, he returned to Marion to make his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Douce of South Grand avenue, and secured employment here. He recently became an employe of the F. & Y. Construction Co. at the Depot. While in service he was stationed in the New Caledonia area.

NAZI RAILROAD CENTERS HIT IN RAF RAID

Planes Fan Out Over 200 Mile Front To Cripple German Communications.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 1—In simultaneous overnight assaults, powerful forces of RAF bombers hammered Nazi defense installations along the French channel coast and fanned out over a 200-mile front in France to blast three of the largest railroad centers through which the Germans are shuttling their forces to meet the impending allied invasion.

Murky weather prevailed over the English channel early today, however, and there were no signs of daylight aerial operations from Britain—the first lull in the allied offensive in two weeks, although heavy bombers did not go out last Friday. At 9 a. m. (3 a. m. EWT) the German radio reported the reich was free of enemy planes and one hour later broadcast that "single enemy planes were approaching"—apparently on reconnaissance missions.

Radio Goes Silent

(The whole Vichy radio network composed of the Lyon, Marseille, Limoges and Vichy stations, went off the air at 12:31 p. m. (6:31 a. m. EWT) today, however, indicating an allied air attack may be in progress in southern France.)

In the rail center attacks last night some 500 RAF night bombers smashed the Trappes yards 16 miles outside Paris, Tergnier 75 miles northeast of Paris and Saumur 150 miles southwest of Paris. Eight British planes failed to return from the operations, which included mine laying in enemy waters, the air ministry announced. Probably well over 2,240 tons of bombs were dropped in the night attacks.

After a one-night interval the Germans again sent some planes against England. These raiders droned over East Anglia and dropped a few bombs, but they appeared to be mainly "on the snoop." It was officially reported that no one was hurt by the German foray and only slight damage was caused.

In daylight raids yesterday powerful forces totaling possibly 3,500 allied planes struck from the west and south, bombarding the four German rail centers of Hamm, Osnabruck, Schwerte and Soest and the Nazi oil source at Ploesti in Romania.

Heavy Fighter Escort

The attacks from British bases against the transportation hubs saw from 750 to 1,000 U. S. heavy bombers, escorted for the fourth consecutive day by more than 1,200 fighters, carry out their missions at a cost of one bomber and four fighters.

Later in the day Thunderbolt and Lightning fighter-bombers attacked two western German airdromes and shot down five of the 30 German fighters which opposed them without a loss to Themselves. Battering Seine river bridges for the sixth straight day American Marauders struck at three important highway spans between Paris and Rouen. One plane was lost in this operation.

Approximately 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Italy battered the Ploesti oil fields and hits were scored on at least one major refinery.

The operations yesterday provided a thunderous finale for the month of May, which saw allied planes fly a record-breaking 148,000 sorties (individual plane flights).

U. S. bombers and their fighter escorts flying from British bases destroyed 896 enemy aircraft during the month, a record. Two hundred eighty seven American heavy bombers and 153 fighters were lost in May.

Mist Settles Over Dover Strait Today

By The Associated Press

DOVER, June 1—Dover strait was blanketed in mist early today, with a ceiling of very low clouds and extremely poor visibility.

Light, variable southwesterly winds ruffled the sea and kept the temperature down. The 9 a. m. reading was 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

The barometer still was falling and the outlook generally was less settled. High tides at Dover and Calais will be at 9:37 p. m. and 9:43 p. m., respectively, tonight (3:37 and 3:43 p. m. eastern war time), and 10:12 and 10:18 a. m. Friday (4:12 and 4:18 a. m. EWT Friday).

Stimson Says 3,657,000 U. S. Troops Now at Overseas Posts

Deployment Practically Complete and Period of Decisive Action Is at Hand, Secretary Reports.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, JUNE 1—Secretary of War Stimson said today that with 3,657,000 army troops already overseas the deployment of air and service forces is practically completed "and the period of decisive action is at hand."

The bulk of forces now moving out of the United States to combat areas is composed of ground troops prepared to use the bases and take advantage of the preliminary air assaults for the final blows against the enemy, the secretary told a news conference, adding:

"The United States Army today has 3,657,000 soldiers deployed outside the continental United States in theaters of operation throughout the world, striking and preparing to strike victory-winning blows by land, from the sea and in the air against Germany and Japan.

"This force, at the end of protected supply lines stretching more than 56,000 miles and reaching into every continent, represents approximately 47 per cent of the total strength of the army.

Overseas Total Grows

"By the end of 1944, the number of troops overseas will be increased to more than 5,000,000 men, approximately two-thirds of total strength."

Overseas deployment of necessity came first for the supply and air forces, Stimson noted since it was necessary to build up the bases for the eventual main drives against the enemy. Those bases now are established, he said, and shipping is available for the movement of ground forces to the overseas theaters. This movement "rapidly is nearing the peak."

Stimson said the overseas strength of the army exceeds the peak overseas strength in the World war by 1,571,000 men, and is only 400,000 men short of the total strength of the army at the close of the World war.

Shifts To Come

In speaking of the overseas deployment, Stimson explained his reference was to total strength, not to overseas location of the forces, which will have to be shifted at least in part, as the campaigns develop. The movement has been made according to a minutely-defined pattern set by the United States joint chiefs of staff to fit the over-all strategy of the war.

Stimson said the air forces, with a total strength of approximately 2,357,000, has slightly less than half of that personnel already overseas. The AAF has more than 75,000 airplanes, including 34,000 combat planes, he said, and more than one-half of the combat plane strength is overseas "making the AAF the world's most formidable aerial striking power in point of size and fire power."

Movement at Peak

The movement of ground troops to overseas theaters is just reaching a peak, Stimson said, but already more than half of the ground forces are deployed for action overseas. Shipping is available to take the outfits remaining in this country to the combat zones as the developing campaigns require them.

Outside of continental United States and United States territories, the AAF has approximately 925 bases, of which 750 are

JAPS EXPAND DRIVE IN CHINA

Tokyo Forces Aim at Wiping Out U. S. Airfields Near Eastern Coast.

By The Associated Press

Japan's great China offensive today appeared on the verge of expansion into a four-front battle aimed at wiping out new allied air bases now virtually dominating enemy shipping along the Chinese coast.

From Chungking unofficial reports said the Japanese were massing in Indo-China, possibly for a drive on Kunming, U. S. air base on the Burma road. From Honan providence came news indicating the invaders were gathering for a new offensive, perhaps against Chunkking.

The Japanese now are moving south and west out of north-central China. The drive on Changsha has in five days moved 60 miles, with less than 40 to go. Capture of Changsha, key point on the Hansow-Canton railroad, would help block off southeast China from allied use.

Chungking authorities said civilian evacuation had been completed in preparation for the fourth Chinese defense of the city.

The second offensive, west along the Yellow river in Honan, apparently was in temporary deadlock, with Chinese forces attacking in some places.

Airpower forged by Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault was the only weapon in which the poorly-equipped Chinese had an edge. Associated Press War Correspondent Clyde A. Farnsworth visited the new Chinese-American composite wing (CACW) in Honan and reported this small air group already had thrown a wrench into Japanese plans.

He said P-40s and B-25c had knocked out much motorized transport and had gained complete air superiority between the Yellow and Yangtze rivers.

Farnsworth threw significant light on Japan's willingness to mount its current offensives: "Eastern China bases from which the 14th airforce and its tactical appendage, CACW, has been virtually controlling the enemy's coastwise shipping, will be of prime importance in the fulfillment of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' pledge of driving through to China."

In Burma Chinese-American troops pushed down the Mogaung valley, capturing the enemy strongpoint at Malakawng. There was no new report of the fighting at Myitkyina, besieged by Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's forces.

Bricker Asks Free Enterprise To Save Veterans from WPA

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, PA., JUNE 1—America's armed forces will be demobilized after the war "into some new and ghastly WPA" unless free enterprise is preserved and new fields of production are utilized, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio asserts.

Every man in armed service wants to come home to "a real job in a real American enterprise," the candidate for the Republican presidential nomination said in an address to the Lancaster Manufacturers association last night.

"But I say to you," he added, "unless free enterprise is preserved and encouraged here, now, in America and unless our energy is turned into as many new fields of production as possible, our armed forces will be demobilized into some new and ghastly WPA, our debt will be multiplied over and over again on top of the war debt, private enterprise will wither and die and we shall be delivered into the hands of the very type of totalitarianism that we defeated in the war."

Says New Deal Trade Foe

Bricker declared "the New Deal has arrogantly sought to destroy business in many ways" and most seriously affected has been small enterprises.

"Under New Deal regimentation and taxation small business has been unable to turn profits into development and expansion," the Ohio chief executive said.

"It is a great tragedy that tens of thousands of small businesses have been forced to close under the New Deal. But the greatest tragedy of all is the desire of the typical American to go into business for himself has been stifled, the loss has not only been to the individual; it has been to our economic system as a whole.

"These little businesses are essential to the American way of life. . . . I take sharp issue with the view of the New Deal that we have reached a mature economy in America. I believe we need a vast expansion of productive energy through a myriad of new enterprises."

Calls For Discussion

Earlier the Ohio governor called on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and other party leaders to discuss current issues and visited nearby Brickerville which was founded by his ancestors.

In a wooded grove Bricker told the 400 residents of Brickerville he was "thrilled to come back to the old hearthstone and homestead."

Among those who came here to greet the Ohio governor was his second cousin, Henry D.

WAR-TIME LIFE IN ROME IS GRIM. Meats Remain Ration Free, Points Cut On Other Foods

All Cheese Lowered and More Canned Juices Added to List Available Without Stamps.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 1—All meats now ration-free will continue so during the period through July 1, the office of price administration said today in announcing these principal changes in the point values on other commodities:

Canned carrots, orange juice, grapefruit juice and blended orange and grapefruit juice are added to the long list of point-free processed foods.

All varieties of cheese and cheese products are reduced two points a pound to a new value of 10 points.

The ration cost of canned evaporated and condensed milk is halved, dropping from one point for a pound to a half point.

The only increases ordered are for pineapple juice, up three points to 15 for a No. 2 can, and grape juice, boosted four points to 10 for a pint container.

Butter Unchanged

Butter stays at 12 points a pound and margarine at two points.

Choice beef steaks and roasts continue to be the only meat cuts requiring ration stamps. Values are unchanged with one exception: chuck steaks and roasts are cut two points a pound. Flank steak remains point-free.

All grade D beef is removed from rationing for the June period, but OPA said very few steaks and roasts of this lower quality are sold at retail. Most of the meat from these animals is made into hamburger and sausage.

In continuing the ration-free meat bargains, the agency said over-all civilian supply for June averages 310,136,000 pounds a week, a 9.6 per cent increase over the 282,850,000 pounds a week in May.

Beef, veal, lamb, mutton and variety meats will be in more plentiful supply in the new period. Pork, while still coming to market in amounts exceeding demand, will fall slightly in volume.

Allocations of cheese for June total 67,000,000 pounds as compared with 55,000,000 pounds for May, accounting for the two-point reduction in ration values.

An increase to 50 per cent in the cutter set-aside for the Army and Navy reduced the monthly allocation for civilians to 133,000,000 pounds from $145,000,000 in May, when 40 per cent of production was put aside. This tightens the supply, but the over-all distribution situation "is regarded as good," OPA said.

Fewer Stamps Valid

It explained that the point value on evaporated milk is being cut in half because with most meats removed from rationing only 30 red points instead of 60 are being validated each month.

"Evaporated milk is an important item in infant feeding and halving the point value will permit purchase of the same amount with 30 points as previously could be bought with 60."

The point increase for pineapple juice and grape juice reflects short supply and too rapid movement into consumption. Slow movement, on the other hand, brought the addition of carrots to the list of point-free canned vegetables. Carrots go to a zero rating from three points for a No. 2 can.

In making citrus juices available without ration stamps, OPA

Farm Mishap Kills Crawford Co. Boy on 13th Birthday

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, June 1—Wayne Arnold Keplinger, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Keplinger of southeast of New Washington, was fatally injured yesterday morning when he was caught under a rotary hoe he was operating. His body was discovered at 12:30 p. m. yesterday when he failed to appear for a noon meal which was to have been his birthday dinner. An angel food cake, baked at his request, was waiting for him.

The accident is thought to have occurred about 10:30 a. m. The boy's father thought Wayne had probably been trying to make repairs or adjustment on the apparatus when the team hitched to the hoe started up. He was pinned by sharp points on the machine.

Besides his parents he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Myrtle May and Mrs. Arlene Clayton of near Bucyrus and Miss Doris Keplinger at home.

TROOPS SEIZE HIGH POSITIONS IN ALBAN HILLS

Drive Deep Wedge Into Enemy Line in Face of Strong Defense.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, June 1 — American doughboys have driven a deep wedge into the enemy's Valmontone line, occupying strategic high points in the historic Alban hills northeast and northwest of Velletri, and now are fighting within sight of Rome.

The advances were won against the strongest kind of German resistance, a communique said today. One salient carried the Americans forward nearly 3,000 yards—more than a mile and one-half.

The Allied command was silent on Velletri itself, but German radio reports indicated the shell and bomb-battered town had been left to the Americans after hot street fighting.

The Eighth army, advancing steadily on highway 6—the Via Casilina — captured Frosinone, provincial capital 54 miles by road from Rome. Frosinone, with a population of well over 20,000, is the most important town and communications center yet seized in the drive along highway 6. It fell to British infantry and armor after a sharp battle.

A dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Edward Kennedy said the Americans broke through the German defenses east of Velletri and fought their way ahead 3,000 yards and occupied a point on Mount Peschio ridge in the Alban hills to the northeast.

Capture High Ground

Other American elements plunging forward in the vicinity of the Appian way captured dominant high ground near the Lake of Nemi northwest of Velletri.

"This latter gain brought the Fifth army to 15 airline miles from Rome's gate of Saint John Lateran through which the Appian Way enters the capital," wrote Kennedy.

From these heights the American infantrymen could see Saint Peter's famous dome rising in dim lines from a hazy mass of buildings that formed Rome.

The Fifth army gains from Valmontone to the Tyrrhenian coast were officially called "limited but important."

Three miles west of the fortified town of Lanuvio armored units crossed the Fossa Di Campoleone, a drainage canal, and maintained steady pressure on the enemy in that area interlaced with canals and ditches.

British troops nearer the coast advanced astride a road north of Ardea, but the extent of their gains was not disclosed.

Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring continued to increase his defensive forces in the Valmontone area to keep highway 6 open for German remnants fleeing from the lower battle sectors. It was officially announced that the Allies made some gains in that area despite the stubborn resistance.

Quicken Retreat Pace

The enemy stepped up the pace of his retreat out of the mountain area where the Fifth army's French troops have been moving northward from the Pontine Marsh area.

French units marched northward from Carpineto and the last Nazi defenders fled from the Lepini hills, which had been a bulwark guarding the Via Casilina from the south. Other French advanced four miles and occupied the village of Patricia, six and a half miles southwest of Frosinone, and Monte Pisclarella, the same distance southwest of Ferentino.

Eighth army troops occupied the town of Sora, northeast of Frosinone and 13 miles up highway 82 from its junction with highway 6 at Arce. Sora fell to a column of New Zealanders driving toward Avezzano, 34 miles beyond.

The British also overran the towns of Ripi, four miles southeast of Frosinone, and Torrice, two miles to the east—both above highway 6.

An American destroyer bombarded German positions in the Ardea sector yesterday and another shelled strong points on the adjacent breach at the left flank of the Fifth army line.

COLUMBUS, O., June 1—Two children who fell from an elephant's back three years ago in Brookside park at Cleveland yesterday won $1,500 damages. The children are Audrey and George Newman. They were knocked from the elephant's back when the animal became frightened and bolted into the elephant house.

Galion PT Skipper in Narrow Escape

Special to The Star

GALION, June 1—Having narrowly escaped death when a shell exploded only six inches away from him to kill four of his men, Ensign Richard B. Secrest, 23, skipper of a speedy PT boat, is in Galion to spend a 30-day rehabilitation leave with his wife, the former Mary Boyd, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Secrest.

Secrest took two and one-half months of PT boat training before leaving for overseas service last October.

Secrest relates here that two American PT boats were on a patrol designed to board or destroy a Japanese schooner at anchor when they were attacked by Japanese planes. He was in the water eight hours after his craft was bombed and strafed off Jap territory. The enemy planes made 12 runs over the craft including three while 10 survivors were struggling to assist wounded men. A vessel directed to the spot by allied planes, rescued the men. Ensign Secrest was wounded in the arm by shrapnel.

In 15 out of 16 patrol in enemy waters, the Galion officer's small craft was the target of Japanese guns.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Shoddy Tactics

HERBERT HOOVER'S formal denial of any connection with efforts to influence the nomination of any Republican for the presidency in 1944 calls attention to a curious situation. The charge that Mr. Hoover was active some, of course, from Democratic sources. Republicans long since have developed an attitude toward Mr. Hoover in which he is regarded as an elder statesman, not as a politician. They respect his opinions, but do not regard him as an active participant in organization politics.

Democrats, however, are still determined to wring the last drop of political animosity out of Mr. Hoover's occupancy of the White House when the United States staggered under the rebound from World war I. The shoddy tactics they employed successfully in 1932 still hold strong appeal for some of them. They apparently believe there still are votes to be made by smearing Mr. Hoover, but all those votes were made long ago.

"I am taking and expect to take no part in the selection of the Republican nominee," Mr. Hoover declared. "The people and their duly-elected delegates will take care of that themselves."

Democrats, much as they hate it, must swallow the fact that the Republicans in 1944 are going to hold a party convention to select nominees for the presidency and vice presidency of the United States and to write a platform. No one will dictate either the nominees or the platform, which will be in contrast with the situation expected when Democrats meet to ratify what Communists already has been decided for them.

Things Were Never Better

DOUBLE congratulations are called for to give the graduates of 1944 their just dues—and to offset the war's effect on the outlook of old men and women who forget that age, more than war, is behind their discouragement.

To be sure, the graduates are facing certain added hardships which must be blamed on the war, but thinking back over the years one wonders when it ever could be said that hardships were not forthcoming from some source.

The truth is, things never were better than they are in commencement season, 1944. All the brightest prospects of humanity are intact and growing brighter. There never was so much useful work to be done, nor so much energy for doing it. There never have been finer adventures within easy reaching distance. For every new problem being grappled with by the tired oldsters, there is at last one old problem being solved by youngsters.

All the things men have dreamed of doing, it sometimes seems to those same weary oldsters, are going to be done virtually as a matter of course in the very near future. Horizons are being moved at the rate of 400 miles an hour. There is a multitude of new gadgets to play with, a surplus of new thoughts to think about. Congratulations to the graduates and congratulations again! It is a good time to be young; it always has been.

Money Is Confidence

INHERENT in all plans for stabilizing post-war money is the necessity of creating post-war confidence. Stabilized currencies reflect, do not create, confidence. Among the United Nations representatives invited to the parley announced by the White House to convene at Bretton Woods, N. H., in July will be those from China and the French committee of Liberation, for example. China is in the throes of ruinous inflation brought on by the shortage of everything that vast country needs; France's economy has been devastated by the German occupation. Any attempt to stabilize—to subsidize their currencies—on the part of wealthier countries would be like pounding sand into a rat hole, unless simultaneously the means of economic recovery go into uninterrupted operation. All the gold and silver above and beneath the ground, all the paper credit and banking devices conceivable, all the ingenuity of money experts are meaningless without continuous production of wealth to give them backing and substance.

A century of peace and production for human needs could create the circumstances of stabilization. The project is not impossible, but its success is improbable without assurance of a long peace and confidence that the prospect of peace can give the forces of recovery. The parley next July is a step in the right direction, but only a step toward a goal which encompasses nearly all the problems of creating an orderly international society. If similar steps had been taken in good faith starting 20 years ago, the journey might not be starting belatedly in 1944.

So They Say—

Despite the fine statement of principles to govern the peace in the Atlantic Charter, which is being interpreted to death these days, it appears that the controversial issues which already are arising in this war are being settled on a sphere-of-influence basis, which is merely a new and nicer word for power politics.—Sen. Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota.

The thing to do with Germany is to isolate Prussia from the rest of Germany and break up the Prussian junker class. Prussia is thoroughly hated in Germany.—Emil Ludwig, author.

News Behind the News

Senators Retain Right To Object as Hull Pushes Post-War Negotiations Abroad.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Secretary Hull's action in announcing that we are ready to proceed on post-war negotiations with the other United Nations (after the senators, were ready to act) is significant in several ways.

He said he was proceeding with the approval of President Roosevelt, but did not mention any approval from the senators.

Frankly as a matter of fact also, though not announced) he attempted to get the senators to sign a letter to him expressing their approval of his and them information [illegible] unnecessary [illegible] they were reserving the right to object.

The administration, however, conforms to the time-table of peace procedure set forth in this column the week last Friday, namely, that the President would not [illegible] would refer the matter to July 1 for [illegible] actual settlement.

To Consult United Nations

As to the [illegible] of the time-table [illegible], that Mr. Roosevelt might call and put a meeting of the United Nations abroad a few months thereafter and thus avoid the Congressional, Mr. Hull indicated only that he would consult the nations individually at that time, first Britain, Russia and China, then the other United Nations.

Such would be the ordinary advance procedure for the calling of a general United Nations conference a few months hence.

Senators interested in the international post-war air settlement (McClellan of Nevada and Clark of Missouri) to mention two) are fortunately urged. While they have said nothing officially and are keeping their suspicions to themselves, temporarily, at least, they feel Secretary Hull changed the tone of an understanding with Lord Beaverbrook in London recently, than either has spoken to date.

Believe Agreements Reached

They think a basis for agreement has been reached and fear they will be confronted eventually with a fait accompli. A complete [illegible] which [illegible] them out, as far as any practical objecting may go.

This is why McClellan, without explanation, split his post-war air bill into two parts the other day. Apparently he intends to save the domestic part of it, even if the international part [illegible].

It might also partly explain his [illegible] severity of language in [illegible] criticizing the President's lack of power in the Montgomery Ward [illegible].

Bricker Campaign

The reports about Governor Bricker breaking with Governor Dewey at every opportunity during the Harrisburg governors' conference were not as surprising as they might seem.

The Bricker people privately claim to have more than 200 delegates which would be roughly less than one-fourth of the nominating convention strength. They came in here and set up campaign headquarters under the management of the well known Ohio newspaper publisher Roy D. Moore, after Dewey had received his unexpected success in the Wisconsin primary and had caused the withdrawal of Willkie.

The way they figure, the large number of uninstructed delegates being counted for Dewey and the relatively small number pledged for him, makes this even yet an open campaign for the nomination.

Delegates Counted Twice

Of course no one actually knows who an uninstructed delegate will vote for, until the roll is called, and few conventions have been held in which opposing factions did not count the same delegates as their own right up to the minute of the roll call. Some are no doubt being counted two ways in this instance.

But in this case, none of the national leaders in the Republican party has come out against Dewey, and no anti-Dewey organizational efforts within the party have appeared. Opposition is simply not apparent.

Thus, while the bulk of delegates is unpledged, few authorities consider the race as open as the Bricker people do.

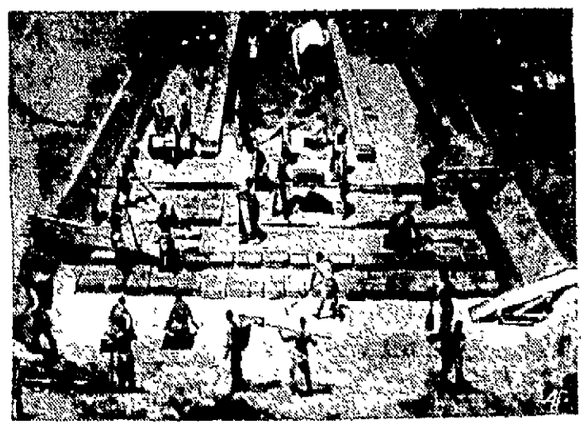
The Appian Way



WHY IT LASTS. The Appian Way has gone through years because of its precision construction. It is shown above how layer after layer of tough surfacing was placed on the road for durability.

By The Associated Press

WHEN Allied troops in Italy smashed through German defenses to cut into the Appian Way, they entered upon one of the oldest military highways in the world and one of the most durable ever built.

Construction of this "guardian of the Roman Empire" was begun in 312 B.C.—441 years after Rome's founding—at the direction of Appius Claudius, Caecus (the blind), famed Roman general, orator and poet. The great engineering project placed Rome in communication with southern Italy, Sicily, Africa and Asia.

American engineers today say that duplicating the process and materials used in building of the Appian Way, for a similar road, built under modern conditions, would probably cost six times as much as a present day wide, heavy traffic highway, according to information from the public roads administration.

Long, Beautiful

The longest and most beautiful road in the ancient world, the Appian Way was developed just as Rome began to establish herself as mistress of the known earth. Through such construction as this Rome was able to bring new provinces under her might.

Although Appius Claudius finished the Appian Way in stages as far south as Capua—the then present border of Rome's provinces—final completion of the road was the labor of centuries.

Begun at the Porta Capena of the Servian Wall, the road, in its first stages was extended across the Pontine marshes, below the Liri and Volturno rivers to Capua, 132 miles away.

Later, the Appian Way was continued from Capua to Beneventum and split, a long carriage route extending 202 miles through Venusia and Tarentum, and another road reaching out 216 miles to the seaport of Hydruntum.

Most of the highway is still in use—after over 1,900 years of service. Historical data indicates that this was the building process used: Between furrows plowed 40 feet apart, earth was removed to create a solid foundation. A bedding course of sand or mortar was laid. Upon this statumen or flat stones were cemented and pressed. A second bed of broken small stones was formed with lime and mortar "filling." Then a nucleus layer of gravel or coarse sand and lime was laid while hot. The wearing course, fashioned of wear-resisting stone like silex, or flint-like lava, was cut into irregular poligons from one to three feet in diameter, fitted together and pressed into the underlying mortar.

Side Curbs

Side curbs or cerpidines projected on either side of the main or vehicle roadway, and on both sides narrow, macadamized, or otherwise treated roadbeds were built for lesser traffic.

Romans apparently kept the center clear for chariots and other war vehicles, and used the side roads for troops and pedestrians. Roman engineers—perhaps because of military strategy—avoided valleys and built their roads right into the heights or sides of hills. Often, they made open cuts in the mountains or dug out tunnels.

Aside from the Appian Way, perhaps Highway 6, the Via Cassilina, that leads back to Rome from Cassino, is the most prominent Roman Empire road to figure in current military operations. But the road system of the empire, according to the Itinerary of Antoninus, embraced 372 main roads, 53,658 Roman miles in total length.

Today and Tomorrow

De Gaulle and French Authorities Risking Own Political Lives To Aid France in Crisis.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE following is from an address at a dinner last night in honor of the anniversary of Lafayette and of the Battle of Bir Hacheim at the Commodore Hotel, New York City.

I am sure I know what is in all our hearts and minds this evening when I say that we are invoking the memory of Lafayette, not only in order to celebrate the great past but in order to declare that France and America can never be separated when there is at stake the liberty and the independence of either one of them.

Twice in 25 years we have learned that they cannot be seperated in war.

In March, 1940, two months before Hitler invaded France, the house of representatives voted to give the American army 57 new military planes. Two days after the French line was pierced at Sedan in May, 1940, the President asked congress for, and congress voted with only one dissenting voice, not for 57 planes, not for 5,700 planes, but for 50,000 planes.

You have there an objective measure of what Americans really think, apart from the things they often say, about the importance of France to the security of the United States.

The question has been, and is today, who and where are the French who mean to resist and to fight? For upon them all things depend.

How Champions Are Made

This evening we may say to Gen. de Gaulle and the French authorities that they are the champions of France among the United Nations. For champions are not appointed. Champions are not created by being recognized. Champions win their places by their own skill and courage against all possible odds.

I cannot conceal my disappointment and my dismay and my anxiety at the fact that we are about to undertake the greatest campaign of modern times without having recognized and without having come to a full understanding with the provisional government of the French republic.

In military power alone it is, as Mr. Churchill said the other day, the fourth great power of the grand alliance of the United Nations. In its political and spiritual influence it is the leading nation of Europe, and the representative, I believe the acknowledged representative, of all the nations which will be liberated.

There are some, I know, who think that a government does not exist unless it is recognized. But we know quite well that many governments have existed which were not recognized. Once upon a time an American government existed for several years before one single foreign power recognized it.

A government exists when it governs, when it makes laws and administers them. When it levies taxes and collects them. When it recruits armies that fight under its orders. By this test there is today a French government.

It is a provisional government because it intends, as Gen. de Gaulle has declared, to relinquish these de facto powers it has assumed in order to direct the French war effort as soon as the French people, now captive, are liberated. But though it is provisional, it alone speaks for the empire, and it alone can speak for France until France is liberated.

Another Proof

There is another proof, to my mind the most impressive of all, that there exists a provisional government of the Republic. It is that it is willing to assume responsibility in the very difficult hours which the French people have still to face.

I have heard it argued that when Algiers asks for civil authority immediately behind the battle zone, when it wishes immediately to deal with questions of order, finance, relief, and reconstruction, it is grasping for power in order to perpetuate itself. That is like saying that those who volunteer for the most dangerous posts in the battle are seeking to get the better of those who remain behind.

I believe that history will say that these demands are proofs of the government's sincerity, of its integrity and of its patriotism. For the men who wish to assume these responsibilities are risking their political lives.

Let us have no illusions about how great will be the suffering in France, how enormously difficult the problems of France, when the inevitable destruction of the coming battle is superimposed upon the long horror of the German occupation.

Those whose only ambition was to rule France after the war would be only too pleased to remain quiet and let Gen. Eisenhower and Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt bear the brunt of the initial responsibility.

So I say that we should hold in high honor and approach with deep gratitude Frenchmen who do not shrink from the difficulties and dangers which the provisional government must encounter. It is a libel and a slander to say of such men that they are attempting to ride into power by means of the British and American armies. For that is just precisely what they are not trying to do.

There's a great day coming, a great day when all the dough that was going to be saved by a complete installation of storm windows will begin to roll in, and the cleaning bills will be nothing at all and drapes and curtains will last twice as long.

And the unearned increment from installation of thermostatic control on the hot water tank will pile up in a corner of the basement and have to be carted away to the savings deposit window in half bushel baskets...

And the extra margin of security created by the purchase of a refrigerator which saves mountains of food that doesn't spoil any more will get so wide it will have to be looped off and put away in a safety deposit box...

And the rugs that didn't wear out because their life was lengthened by the purchase of a super-duper electric vacuum cleaner will keep getting better looking and eliminate the necessity of buying new rugs...

And the house repairs that were going to save money in the long run because think of the consequences of not making them when they are needed will not have to be made again for 150 years.

And the tremendous saving effected by having the furnace done over will climb into two, three and ultimately four figures, all of which is just like finding an unclaimed pocketbook full in the street...

And the consequences of stuffing up cracks and filling up the space between the outside and the inside with various patent preparations will provide more efficient insulation will fool you and can be written off as net profit...

And the extra dough put out on this, that and the other thing finally will be amortized and from then on everything will be operating at a big, fat net profit because a bigger original investment is bound to prove cheaper in the long run...

And the few cents here and there that represented real economy as against something else that could have been bought a few cents cheaper but was false economy will begin to pay off in dividends of pure gold.

And the benefit of preventive medicine and preventive dentistry will materialize and the insurance premiums that were going to be paid their weight in gold will spew out savings like a jack pot on a slot machine...

And the results of being foresighted all will happen at once, leaving the dazed, happy beneficiary of the long view wondering what to do with all that unexpected money...

But in the meantime, chum, here's that buck you need to tide you over till tomorrow.

OHIO LUTHERANS VOTE IN FAVOR OF MERGER

Report Made in Convention by Cardington Pastor.

A report that the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church voted willingness yesterday to unite in pulpit and altar fellowships with the Missouri synod and the United Lutheran Church of America was made by Rev. Harry Eswine of St. John Lutheran church at Windfall, Marion county, publicity chairman for the district, according to a news release by The Associated Press today. The district convention is in assembly at Columbus this week.

The intention to unite in the pulpit and altar fellowships with the other groups "providing certain obstacles are overcome," made by the Ohio district, largest of 15 districts in this country, was one step toward a possible distant union of the three branches of Lutheranism, Rev. Eswine declared. The "obstacles" are rules of the other groups which allow ministers of any denomination to preach in Lutheran pulpits and which permit ministers to belong to a fraternal order. "Pulpit fellowship," Rev. Eswine explained, is the exchange of ministers for preaching and "altar fellowship" is the right of laity in one branch to take part in sacraments of another branch. He described the American Lutheran church as "the middle-of-the-road Lutherans," the Missouri synod as "The conservatives" and the U. L. C. A. as "the liberals."

SCHINE TRUST TRIAL RESUMES IN BUFFALO

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 1—Emerson W. Long, theater-owner of Cadiz, O., resumes testimony today in federal court as first witness for the prosecution in the government's anti-trust suit against Schine Theaters, Inc., operators of 160 theaters in New York, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio.

The trial, long delayed opened yesterday with introductory remarks by Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the attorney general, and Willard S. McKay, general counsel for Schine theaters.

Wright said the government seeks to reestablish competition in Schine towns. "We intend to show," he said, "that small operators were not permitted to compete in the licensing of films, and that they had three alternatives: to go out of business, sell out to Schine, or show products that Schine had first or rejected."

McKay contended the case was having the effect of "an attempt to ruin private enterprise."

Long, in testifying, said he had encountered "extreme difficulty" in obtaining first-run productions for a theater he formerly operated at Mt. Vernon, O. Film distributors, he said, in Columbus, Cleveland and New York told him first-run productions had been sold to the Schine theater and were not available to him.

He also testified that one Schine theater in Mt. Vernon reduced its admission prices from 35 cents to 15 cents from 1934 to 1940 but increased them to 20 cents after he closed his theater.

He added that in 1937 two Schine representatives had approached him with "propositions" that he sell his theater to Schine, telling him that otherwise "we're going to have to build a new theater."

The government complaint, filed Aug. 7, 1939, asks that the chain be restrained from acquiring any more theaters and that the "contracts, combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade and commerce practiced by the defendant be declared illegal and violative of the Sherman anti-trust act."

USE GLASS IN TANKS

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, June 1—Newly observation panels of laminated plate glass are being installed in tanks to permit tank commanders to view battle action without exposing themselves to enemy fire, the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co., maker of the panels reported today. The panels allow commanders to keep the hatches closed and still have a full field of unobstructed vision. Although technically as prismatic as periscope blocks, the panels were declared as resistant to all high velocity projectiles except armor-piercing shells.

JOHN J. FRABER DIES SUDDENLY

Hardin County Business Man Passes Away at Home in Mt. Victory.

John J. Fraber, 72, widely-known Hardin county stockman and business man, died suddenly of a heart attack at 5:30 a. m. today at his home in Mt. Victory. Although he had been in failing health for the last four years, he was in his usual health yesterday, and his death early today came as a distinct shock to his family and the community. His wife, Viola Bowen Fraber, died March 27, this year.

Mr. Fraber was a lifelong resident of Hardin county. A buyer of livestock, he was one of the biggest shippers of stock in Hardin county a number of years ago. He also operated a meat market in Mt. Victory and until last year, when his health compelled him to retire from active business, he had served as president of the Mt. Victory State bank. At the time of his death he was a vice president and director of the organization. In 1922 Mr. Fraber and his son-in-law, W. C. Boyd of Harding Highway West, established the Boyd-Fraber furniture store and funeral home at LaRue, and Mr. Fraber also was a partner of the Fraber & Sherman funeral home and furniture store in Mt. Victory. He was born Jan. 25, 1872, in Seneca county to George and Caroline Fayes Fraber, natives of that county.

Mr. Fraber's religious affiliations were with the Methodist church at Mt. Victory, and fraternally he was a member of the Masonic lodge at LaRue, the chapter, Commandery and Council at Kenton, the Consistory at Toledo, and Alladin Shrine at Columbus.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. W. C. Boyd of Harding Highway West, and three grandchildren, Lt. Phillip Fraber Boyd, stationed with the U. S. Army at George Field, Lawrenceville, Ill., Thomas Jerome Boyd, hospital attendant 2/c, U. S. Navy, stationed at Oceanside, Calif., and Mrs. Joanna Boyd Sheehe who is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd. A brother, Clarence Fraber of Mt. Victory and a sister, Mrs. Della Fensel of Lansing, Mich., also survive.

Friends may call at the Boyd-Uncapher funeral home on West Columbia street, after 7 o'clock this evening. Funeral services will be conducted at the funeral home, with Rev. M. E. Hollensen, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be made in Forest Glen Memorial park. The time of the funeral has not been set, as the family is awaiting word from the grandson, Thomas Boyd.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1—Robert I. Miller, 67-year-old police court attorney, stands acquitted today of a charge of murder in the shooting of Dr. John E. Lind with whom Miller's wife, Marguerite, says she had been intimate for nearly five years. Miller testified he shot Lind in self-defense when the psychiatrist reached for a gun as Miller attempted to get Mrs. Miller out of Lind's car. The slaying occurred shortly after noon in Rock Creek Park, Washington on Feb. 21.

FARM BUREAU BUYS REFINING CO. PLANT

Marion Association Acquires National's Property Here.

Proceedings started early in March have been completed and the Marion Farm Bureau Cooperative association has purchased the National Refining Company plant on Bellefontaine avenue. Deliveries of all petroleum products are already in progress.

Robert Paulus of near Marion, who was associated with the National company, has been appointed plant manager of the new concern. The purchase gives the Marion association its own plant for the first time in 12 years.

J. S. Mulvaine of LaRue, formerly manager of the company, is now associated with the Farm Bureau as general field man and promotion manager. Paul Spicer of Park street and Linn Bumgarner of Richwood have also joined the local staff and are operating two additional tank trucks. Three trucks are being used now with one held in reserve.

The newly purchased plant is operated as a branch and all petroleum business except for the gasoline station on Park boulevard is handled through the plant office.

Counties serviced by National Refining included Marion, Morrow, Crawford, Seneca, Union, Delaware and Logan. The Farm Bureau in each of these counties, with the exception of Morrow county, has already taken over the local business. The Morrow County bureau will service the customers in that county as soon as arrangements have been completed.

Facilities consist of storage tanks with a capacity of 90,000 gallons of gasoline, 10,000 gallons of oil and space for grease and other supplies. Other buildings include an office and gas station with 3 pumps, which is not yet in operation. Indoor space for trucks is also available.

When the plant started operating as part of the cooperative association last month, 87,543 gallons of gasoline and liquid fuel were delivered between May 1-14.

The purchase now offers three distribution points, the bulk plant on Bellefontaine avenue, the station on Park boulevard and a station in LaRue.

HERBERT MUST RULE ON OWN PROBLEM

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 1—Thomas J. Herbert, attorney general, today had to rule whether Tom Herbert, the candidate, legally won a recount of the vote by which Mayor James G. Stewart of Cincinnati defeated him for the Democratic nomination for governor.

A spokesman for a major part of the state Herbert said his opponent's lead is a recheck of the vote here.

The Hamilton county board of elections asked the problem into the attorney general's lap after hearing after representatives of Herbert, the contender, asked a halt to the canvass of the county returns. Clerk of 574 of the county's 777 precincts had given Herbert only 171 more votes, however carried the county 49,736 to 9,830 in the Republican primary, but lost by 162,884 to 166,512 in the state on the basis of official returns.

The exact status of the recount situation was not clear. E. G. Schaessler, Herbert's chief assistant, said the board "the claim made so far by and justify continuing it and we wish to withdraw our application for recount of the remaining precincts."

The board of elections asked County Prosecutor Carson Hoy whether a recount could be halted part way and suggested that he ask Herbert, as attorney general, for his views. But Harry A. Hansen at Cleveland, a Herbert representative at the count, insisted that it was merely "suspended" until Monday while the Herbert supporters studied results so far.

Carl R. Wenzel, clerk of the board of elections, said a Herbert ruling that a recount could be stopped would reserve a finding by Gov. John W. Bricker when he was attorney general in 1935, and would give Herbert supporters $1,030 or more of the $7,700 they put up for the recount here.

Meantime, completion of a recount asked in Scioto county gave Herbert 58 votes and cost Stewart 55, in errors attributed to slips in tabulation. Herbert had called a halt in that recount, also, but Thomas C. Kilcoyne, clerk of the Scioto county elections board, insisted on completing the 102-precinct check.

Republican Governors Believe Dewey Is In

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 1—Most Republican governors on their way home today from their annual meeting expressed belief in private conversations that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will win the presidential nomination of their party late this month and that Gov. Earl Warren will be the running mate unless he declines.

Republican Gov. Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas predicted Dewey's nomination on the first ballot, soon after Ohio's Gov. Bricker reasserted in a press conference a belief the convention would not make a choice on one roll call.

Nazi U-Boat Stops Refugee Ship, Two Americans Seized

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 1—A German submarine stopped the neutral Portuguese refugee ship Serpa Pinto off Bermuda on a clear dark night and a calm sea last Friday, took two prisoners and warned the 385 crew members and passengers the ship would be sunk.

Three lives, including that of a sixteen-month-old baby, Beatrice Trapunski, were lost in the rush to launch lifeboats.

One of those who fled the ship, Tony Ribeiro, who came to the U. S. to go into business with his brother, David, of Gloucester, Mass., said yesterday.

"I was asleep in my cabin when the Nazis came aboard. The lifeboat we were in drifted around from 3 a. m. to noon. It was about noon when the submarine abandoned preparations to torpedo the ship after wireless orders from Berlin.

Passengers and crew reboarded the ship while the submarine hovered close at hand. It docked here secretly late Tuesday and the Navy disclosed the story yesterday.

The dead baby was the child of Abraham and Eva Trapunski, Polish refugees bound for Canada. Other victims were Antonio Ferreira Machado, ship's doctor, who fell into the sea from a Jacob's ladder, and Hermano Antonio, ship's cook, killed by a blow from a block on a lifeboat tackle.

The captured Americans were Manuel Pinto, 22, of Waterbury, Conn., and Virgilio Magina, 22, of New Bedford, Mass. The Germans also took a Canadian native and British subject, Camilio Grande Perez, 24, aboard the submarine but later released him.

Pinto, a farmer who had been in Portugal for a number of years, was the ship's chief officer.

Mrs. Maria A. Chaves, 35, of Fall River, Mass., coming to join her husband, said she almost drowned when the liner was ordered abandoned.

The Navy said the Serpa Pinto was stopped by gunfire and signals 12:05 a. m. last Friday and that her captain, Americo Dos Santos, was summoned to the bridge when blinker signals were sighted. Engines stopped at 12:30.

Some passengers were allowed to go to their homes yesterday after questioning by immigration officials. The rest were kept aboard but it is expected that all will pass through immigration routine today.

MARION MOTORIST HURT IN ACCIDENT

Clarence Everly in Hospital After Crash Near Kenton.

Clarence Everly of 378 North Prospect suffered severe injuries Monday about 12:30 p. m. and narrowly escaped death when his automobile left the road about four miles north of Kenton, went over a five-foot ditch, turning over several times, and came to a stop in a field. The car was demolished.

Mr. Everly suffered a fractured rib close to his spine, severe cuts on his right arm and a fractured right hand, bruises and shock. He was taken to Antonio hospital, Kenton, for treatment and was removed last night to Marion City hospital where his condition was reported as fair today. On his way to Chippewa park at Indiana Lake for the Memorial holiday with Mrs. Everly and their children who had gone there previously, he either dozed at the wheel or some part of the car's mechanism gave way suddenly, Mrs. Everly said today.

20 HURT AS BUS STRIKES ABUTMENT

By The Associated Press

SIDNEY, O., June 1—A Greyhound bus struck a bridge abutment on the Dixie highway north of here early today and 20 persons were injured, five of them seriously, Sheriff Truman Pitts reported.

Pitts said the southbound Detroit-Cincinnati bus hit an automobile, parked beside the highway because of a flat tire, and veered into the bridge. The accident occurred four miles north of here about 4 a. m.

The sheriff identified the bus driver as W. Woodley of Detroit. Names and the condition of the injured passengers were not immediately available. The injured were taken to Wilson Memorial hospital here, Pitts reported.

Corporal Ben Hughes of the state highway patrol said Woodley, 34, suffered internal and right leg injuries.

Most seriously injured, Hughes reported, were Pfc. Reno H. Smith of Ivyton, Tenn., back and face lacerations, and his wife Mearle, 24, cut about the legs and feet.

Several of the passengers left the hospital after receiving treatment. A total of 30 were on the bus, including the driver, Hughes said. None of the injured was from Ohio, the officer added.

LUTHERAN MEETING ENDS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 1—The Ohio district of the American Lutheran church ends its fourteenth annual convention today after having devoted a major share of attention to the start of mission work among Negroes. The convention approved a $12,000 appropriation, requested by the district mission committee, and authorized the establishment of Negro Lutheran Sunday schools and churches.

NAVY SHIP BREAKING TO PIECES ON ROCKS

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1—The sea today was pounding the Liberty Ship Henry Bergh to pieces on the rocks of Farallon Islands, 30 miles west of the Golden Gate, but her more than 1,000 Navy passengers were safe.

The 10,500-ton vessel ran ashore in fog and rain at dawn yesterday while bringing the sailors home from war service in the South Pacific.

Rescue operations were orderly, and the navy said there were no reports of casualties among the men, hundreds of whom floated to life jackets or rode rafts until picked up by patrol boats.

So swiftly were rescue operations put into effect the majority of the men were removed directly from the grounded transport to patrol boats. Others made the shores of the small islands. All were brought to San Francisco.

Distress signals from the Henry Bergh were heard first at 5 a. m.

Robert Klares, 24, of Minneapolis, said that when the alarm sounded "my first thought was that in the darkness we had hit another vessel."

"But the skipper told us in a good natured calm voice over the speaker system that we had gone aground and directed us to get off the ship in rafts and boats," Klares said. "The water was covered with oil and was cold as hell."

The navy reported the transport was breaking "into pieces rapidly." Efforts were speeded to salvage all possible material.

The Henry Bergh, operating under private charter as a transport, was built in 1942 at a Henry J. Kaiser yard at Richmond, Calif., and was owned by the war shipping administration.

World Is Anxious Over Rome's Fate as Battle Nears

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

With Fifth Army fighting [illegible] the only fifteen miles from Rome—so close that at the point where our doughboys could see the dome of old St. Peter's a small white flag that would satisfy the Italian captain's wishes should [illegible] intensely.

The allies [illegible] clear they will do their utmost to [illegible] the Eternal City, which not only houses the Holy See but whose site was [illegible] as far back as Neolithic days and this is one of the earliest milestones in the progress of mankind. What the Nazis may do is another matter.

When Pope Pius appealed to the allied and German armies March 12 to spare Rome thus becoming a battleground, Secretary of State Hull said too allied bombs [illegible] could be done. Hull added that the blame would be on the Germans if Rome did suffer. President Roosevelt a few days later, in a note to Premier De Valera of Eire, said substantially the same thing. The latest allied statement was by British Prime Minister Churchill last week when he declared:

"We have great hopes that the city of Rome will be preserved from the struggle of our armies."

Churchill didn't explain this seemingly optimistic forecast. We know the allies will do their best to shield Rome but as he remarked, it's impossible to forecast what the Germans will do on their retreat from Italy "in the way of destruction to a people they hate and despise."

Perhaps the prime minister's view was based on the thought that the Germans may not try to hold Rome—not because of desire to spare the city but to save their own skins. I don't believe the present determined resistance by the Nazis in the powerful defenses of the Alban foothills below Rome is in itself proof that they intend to hang on to a finish.

Whatever German Field Marshal Kesselring may intend to do about holding Rome, he has no choice at this juncture but to defend the approaches to the city until he has rescued as many as he can of his mauled forces which are retreating along bombed roads, all of which lead to Rome. The capital is the hub of Italy's highways and railways. He must clear his army through there to reach new defenses to the north. If the Allies should occupy Rome now, great numbers of German troops would be cut off.

Hitler's propagandists are informing their public—and the world—that the Nazis will withdraw to the north of Rome—that its occupation by the Allies doesn't matter. One looks for catches in enemy propaganda, but this might mean what it says. One good reason may lie here:

Berlin itself is predicting a possible Allied landing on the Italian coast above Rome [illegible] the island Corsica. Such an invasion, if successful, would cut Kesselring off from the north and might result in annihilation of virtually his entire force. Hitler couldn't afford that.

GOVERNORS LOOK TO POST-WAR ERA

By The Associated Press

HERSHEY, Pa., June 1—The nation's governors concluded their annual conference today by calling for quick federal action on plans for post-war public works and reconversion of war industries to peace time production.

After electing Gov. Herbert R. Maw, Utah Democrat, as chairman to succeed Governor Leverett Saltonstall, Massachusetts Republican, they adopted a resolution yesterday saying:

"We believe that there should be better cooperation between the federal government and the states and the governors should be kept more fully and completely informed of the activities being planned on by federal agencies within the respective states, particularly when new activities are inaugurated."

The executives said state and local governments can now [illegible] their share of activities which the federal government has been administering, frequently duplicating their services. They urged that policies be developed cooperatively, that congress set forth general policy explicitly in statutes, that states have immediate supervision and directing [illegible] that subordinate governmental units be given responsibility for local operation.

They called specifically for plans on highway development, rivers and harbors, irrigation and flood control.

They asked also that congress act immediately on definite plans and policies for human demobilization and prompt contract termination when peace time production is resumed.

De Valera Victorious in General Election

By The Associated Press

DUBLIN, June 1—Prime Minister Eamon De Valera won a clearcut victory in Eire's general election Tuesday with the incomplete count of returns today showing his Fianna Fail party with 68 seats in the dail (parliament), only three short of an overall majority.

Returns from 17 districts still were outstanding. The Fine Gael (opposition) party won 25 seats, the Farmers nine, Independents eight, Labor seven and National Labor four.

All of the Brooklyn-born prime minister's cabinet had retained their seats in the dail.

On the average it takes five acres of land to raise feed for a single horse for a year.

PROSPECT DEDICATES SERVICE HONOR ROLL

Special to The Star

PROSPECT—After the Decoration day parade of ex-service men, community band, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, and school children and services at the graves of soldiers buried in Prospect cemetery the group reformed and marched to the honor roll for dedicatory services. The board, 12 by 16 feet is situated on the lawn of the municipally owned electric light plant. Before the center of the board stands a marble stone bearing the inscription, "Then country called them, and they left us to serve." Fastened to the board was a "V" of scarlet poppies prepared by the auxiliary of the American Legion.

After the playing of the national anthem by the band, Samuel Almeninger, president of the Prospect Commercial club, traced the history of the project from its inception in 1942. Construction of the board began June 3, 1943 when it was erected by Clarence Griffith, John Griffith, and Fred Seebach, with space for 204 names. It will be necessary to add a panel at both ends to accommodate the still growing list of names. Serving on the committee for design were W. W. Watting, chairman, Edward Hess and Fred W. Gehm.

Hallock Secrest, superintendent of schools, made the speech of dedication and read the list of names on the board.

Honoring the memory of Beecher Porter, the single gold star on the roll, the American Legion fired a salute and played taps.

Rev. E. W. Gunther offered prayer after which the company adjourned to the school auditorium, where Commander Edward Perry took charge. The invocation was by Rev. Russell Daubert. Miss J. Anne Mattison played a clarinet solo, Miss Lorna Lauer two accordion selections, and Miss Jeannine Griffith two violin numbers.

Dr. Ben Brubeck, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church of Norwood, O., gave the address. Rev. Russell Daubert pronounced benediction.

Dr. C. L. Baker Reviews Highlights of Half a Century of Medical Practice at Kirkpatrick

By EDNA S. DUTTON

A story telling of the advancement in medicine and the milestones of progress in the life of his community would make interesting reading should Dr. C. L. Baker of Kirkpatrick decide to set aside his medicine case, turn author, and relate his observations and experiences of the last half a century as a country doctor. Just 50 years ago last month, Dr. Baker, then a young man of 24, "hung out his shingle" as an M.D. in the village of Kirkpatrick, and today, at 74, in that same village, he is administering to the ills of the community and shouldering a professional burden which ordinarily would be shared by younger doctors now in the service of their country.

Original Capital $7

Folks were still talking about the Ferris wheel and other wonders of the Chicago World's Fair when Dr. Baker arrived in Kirkpatrick to begin his professional career following his graduation on March 31, 1894 from the Medical College of Indiana, in Indianapolis. His capital consisted of seven dollars advanced by his maternal uncle, Dr. P. C. Alexander who was practicing medicine at Wyandot, a zest for and belief in his profession, faith in humanity and a knack for making and keeping friends. E. Reeder, a blacksmith, his wife and their seven children shared their home with him and gave him a room for an office. The seven dollars, which his uncle said "would give him a start but that after it was gone he would be on his own," paid his room and board the first weeks in the Reeder home. He remained with the family until his marriage several years later.

The young doctor had a "patient" the second day after his arrival. Returning home from driving over to the postoffice with one of the Reeder boys, "just to kill time" he was informed that he had a call. The call netted him his first fee, 75 cents, which looked bigger than a $10 bill today, he recalls, but the money meant nothing in comparison with the joy and satisfaction in learning that the medicine worked with the patient was well on the road to recovery.

Travel Difficult Then

Dr. Baker made his calls, afoot, on horseback, with a horse and buggy and in late years by automobile, and then, as now he was on call 24 hours a day. In many instances, when the distance was far and the roads impassable with a horse and buggy, he would drive to a certain point where some member of the patient's family would meet him with a team and sled or mudboat. Frequently in severe winters and rainy springs during those early years of practice, horses went belly deep in snow or water. One of his first real tests and the one he recalls vividly, was the typhoid epidemic in 1896, when he scarcely had time to eat and snatch a few winks of sleep. From the middle of June until the first of December, when the epidemic was at its worst, the best he could do was remove his shoes and coat and grab a cat nap between calls. He had more than 60 patients ill with the malady, he recalls. The epidemic was caused by the water, Dr. Baker believes, since drainage in that section was quite inadequate.

Acquires Own Horses

Dr. Baker "owned" his own horse and buggy soon after he began his practice. Fond of horses, owning one contributed to his pleasure along with providing him a means of transportation. He kept three horses to adequately take care of his practice and frequently rented one when business was rushing and travel difficult. In 1910 he owned his first automobile, a Ford with acetylene lights and lots of trimmings. Since that time he has "worn out" seven Fords, three Dodges and is now on his fourth Oldsmobile. He does his own driving and during the past winter he traveled as much as 90 miles a day visiting patients, despite the fact that many patients, not seriously ill, describe their symptoms over the telephone and some member of the family calls at his office for the medicine.

Dr. Baker, like everyone else, breaks his own rules. When he slipped and fell, breaking a small bone in one of his feet, while making a call during a heavy snow, he took care of the patient and also visited two more before returning home even though he "knew" he had suffered a serious injury. Upon arriving home he arranged for an X-ray and care of the injury which laid him up for about three weeks.

Helped By Uncle

It was Dr. Baker's uncle, Dr. Alexander who inspired and aided him in the realization of his career. When Dr. Alexander returned from Kansas where he had been practicing medicine, the then young man thought it was pretty nice to be dressed up—tall silk hats and mustaches were the order of the day—and to own a span of good looking horses. When his uncle discussed his future with him, suggesting law, ministry and other professions, his answer was "I think you have a pretty good profession." From the Wiley school, a country school near the home of his grandparents, Benjamin and Hannah Alexander, near Perryton, with whom he made his home, Dr. Baker went to Ohio Wesleyan university for two years. From school he went to Newark where he worked in a drygoods store owned by his uncle, M. Q. Baker, later going to Springfield to read medicine with his uncle, Dr. Alexander, who had moved to that city from Wyandot.

When Dr. Baker completed his work at the Medical College of Indiana it was his uncle, Dr. Alexander, who had returned to Wyandot to practice, who helped him select a location. There were two churches at Kirkpatrick, and it was his uncle's opinion, (and the young man agreed) that a community which supported two churches would be a good place in which to live.

Likes Home Community

Dr. Baker has seen the community progress from coal oil lamps and mud roads to modern utilities, new churches, centralized school and other improvements which make it one of the most thriving settlements in the county and what Dr. Baker claims to be the finest place in the country in which to live. He has helped to centralize the school, was a moving figure in the erection of the two new church buildings and is active in the affairs of the community. The family name is on the roster of both churches. Dr. Baker is a member of the Church of Christ and his wife is a member of the Methodist church where she is a teacher of a Sunday school class and also represents the church as a delegate in the conference. Dr. Baker is a member and a past president of the Marion Academy of Medicine, the Ohio State Medical society and the American Medical association. His recreational interests include fishing, raising chickens, gardening and meeting and knowing people. "Marvelous" is the word he uses to describe the progress made in medicine and he feels that a great advancement has been made in the professional with the discovery and [illegible] drugs and penicillin.

Brinkhaven Native

Dr. Baker was born in Brinkhaven, O., which was then known as Mt. Holly on Christmas day, 1869. His parents were Dr. C. M. Baker, a native of Knox county, and Tabitha Alexander Baker, [illegible] county. He went to [illegible] city when five years old to make his home with his maternal grandparents, Mrs. Baker, before their marriage in 1902, was Miss Jennie Knowles. They have two children, Don M. Baker, who is with the East Ohio Gas Co. in Cleveland, and daughter, Mrs. J. C. Bea[illegible] Republic, and three gran[illegible] dren.

On the occasion of his fi[illegible] versary as a practitione[illegible] ne citizens of the comm[illegible] gave a party at the school [illegible] honor. More than 200 neig[illegible] and friends attended.

Letters from Our Readers

SPONSORSHIP OF HERO TRIBUTE DISAPPROVED

Editor of The Star: You may seem an ingrate for this letter, but there was a page in the May 29th Star that I found very objectionable. I refer to the Memorial Day tribute to Marion county's hero dead of World war II that was sponsored by the Liquor Dealers association. Somehow, Mr. Editor, I didn't think some of these boys would consider [illegible] to have it signed that way. I'm sure one of them wouldn't. And, since we can't be here to explain it to you, I'd like to tell you for mine and [illegible] I can.

[illegible] and he loved to live here—same as we do. There are lots of things [illegible] about Marion, such as [illegible] the park, good [illegible], baby [illegible] in summer, beautiful [illegible] and safety [illegible] playing around—[illegible] like that.

Of course, there were things he didn't like, too—men cursing at their work, street fights and drunk [illegible] at night, police records of intoxication charges [illegible] and families caused by drunken driving, and kids crying because home isn't a happy when dad is drunk on payday.

And when he had to go away to war I think he carried in his heart the good things he remembered about Marion and the people who lived there. He wasn't any braver than any of the others just because he got it was fair to do the best he could, keep clean, pray earnestly, and hurry back to his family and the way of life he loved. I don't think he would have felt proud to be fighting to keep away the things in Marion of which he [illegible] that offend decency and goodness.

Liquor is one of those things. He would [illegible] back. Mr. Editor, [illegible] the ideals for which he fought and died.

[illegible] any more tribute to the garment men with [illegible] liquor dealers. [illegible] memorial [illegible] respect and reverence [illegible] those [illegible] minutes. And prayer to our God are to very sacred to be touched by men who deal in degradation. This is not an angry letter, some of us have been hurt too deeply to be angry, and anger is a futile weapon anyway.

These are the opinions of only one person, Mr. Editor, but perhaps they will reflect a little the feelings of others, too.

MRS. DONALD F. BUCKLEY.

PROTEST FROM A BROTHER

Editor of The Star: I came back to my home town today to pay my respects to our honored dead. I chanced to pick up the Monday evening edition of my home town newspaper. I thought there should be a comment made of those of our boys who have given their lives in this war so far. Among these is my own dear brother.

I noticed the fine memorial tribute paid to these boys. I also noticed to my sorrow and disappointment and disgust that this fine tribute, including a prayer to Almighty God, was sponsored by the Liquor Dealers of Marion.

This is what I object to. My brother never drank a drop of liquor and he disliked those who did and to think that such a group should use his name—one who has paid the supreme sacrifice for his country—to help further their debasing trade is more than I can stand. I hereby object and demand that hereafter permission be granted before my own brother's name be used to advertise liquor.

I also think that some form of apology be written for the wrong that has already been done. Hereafter please do not use the name of this my brother to further any kind of advertising. It is time for the Christian people and the church be awakened to the subtle effort the liquor traffic is using to undermine the morals of our young men and women of America. I demand that something be done about this.

Yours for a victory fitting the sacrifice paid by those who made the supreme sacrifice.

REV. HOWARD W. BUCKLEY
Pastor E. 8th Ave. Evangelical church, Columbus, Ohio.

You may miss vitamin C unless you get enough at breakfast. A 6 to 8 ounce glass of fresh orange juice gives you a day's quota of C with a bonus of other vitamins and minerals.

No wonder orange juice is first on millions of breakfast menus. If you miss out at breakfast, enjoy oranges in cool salads and desserts, or as a lunch-box or between-meal snack.

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

Park Picnics

Marion residents need not go far afield to enjoy outdoor picnicking. Within a few minutes drive from the center of the city are several parks and picnic grounds. A cardinal rule to observe when using gasoline for cooking is to wipe up any spot which might cause fire to conflagrate the possibility of losing a picnic lunch or a basket climbing around a city park and reaching for one of Marion's trees.

Buses run almost hourly to McKinley and Lincoln for almost any family to make the trip unless there's a youngster not yet able to walk, but even these families could make it to Garfield, where the buses stop right at the entrance.

The parks are big enough and pleasant enough to give persons who have small yard space at home a sense of living in the expansive out-of-doors, and there are some pieces of playground equipment available for the children.

Here's one tip that might come in handy. Don't neglect to take an extra sweater along, because even on fairly warm days, the temperature drops as evening arrives at the park.

Find $150 in Booth

Dropping in at the state's for honesty would have been right at home if he had walked into a local ice cream parlor recently. There he could have discovered two young waitresses who had hurried to turn in $150 after finding that amount in a billfold in one of the booths. A woman diner had stopped only for refreshments before continuing her trip and didn't discover until she was well out of Marion that she had left her money behind. When the waitress made a report police weren't able to check with the manager until the following day but the girls had already turned in the money.

New Nickname

Patrolman Fred Norton figured this one was too good to keep to himself. He was tagged with a new nickname a few nights ago by a Marion visitor. She had repeatedly tried to get his attention and when all things failed she signed deeply and yelled with exasperation, "Hey Junior!" That got results.

The inconsistency of women has long been a contention of the opposite sex. One more example pointed out by the men is the advertising of stockings and leg makeup which is run for the benefit of the women. On one page of a paper recently a certain brand of makeup informed the reader that after the liquid had been applied, no one would be able to tell that the user was not wearing nose. Upon turning the page, one was advised that another store had just received a shipment of seamless hose "that give that desired bare-leg look." How's a person supposed to know what the gals want?

The Law Responds

Two five-year-old youngsters have learned that the law is all powerful. A few weeks ago when an older child "swiped" the coat of the little girl of the story, instead of going crying home to mother, she and a companion went around the corner to the police station and reported the matter. The policemen responded beautifully, getting out the cruiser, taking the two children to "the scene of the crime" and retrieving the coat. P. S. While the two were being well taken care of in the cruiser one of the mothers was anxiously searching for her child.

Anzio Nature Note

Evidence that the laws and instincts of nature are kept intact and undisturbed even in the midst of fierce upheaval by man, a being of intelligence, came by way of an incident passed on to us from the Anzio beachhead. An officer we know, whose quarters there is a dugout room, one day aired his bedding in the sun at some distance. That night, while writing a letter by a light he had rigged up and connected to the engine of his jeep, he noticed a toad sitting on his bedroll. Though he offered the creature a "nice fat fly" and a precious bit of sugar it would not consent to be taken as a mascot, but neither was it frightened away. Finishing his letter, he prepared his bedroll on a layer of straw for the night and "turned in." Still the toad was there. Suddenly he felt something bobbing around in the bedroll and on investigation discovered a miniature toad no larger than the nail of his little finger. Free, and reunited with its parent, the tiny toad hopped happily off!

[illegible] Sunday School softball league [illegible] Foster, secretary of the [illegible] commissioner, announced today. Schedule for the loop, the third city softball league to organize thus far, will be completed by the end of the week, Foster said, chairman of the schedule committee of the [illegible].

Teams entered in the Church loop, a feature in the local diamond set-up since the introduction of softball into the Marion athletic program two decades ago, are Epworth, St. Mary, Presbyterian and Greenwood. The Greenwood team, managed by Ray Donahoo, is the latest entrant, filing its registration at the Y. M. C. A. only a few days ago. Knight, Zanesville Manager, Has Habit Of Winning Minor League Championships

ZANESVILLE, O., June 1—Secretary Jack Knight, who is managing the Zanesville Dodgers of the Ohio State league, comes here with an experienced minor league managerial record having won four pennants in eight years. He also has finished second three times and fifth once.

Later stop for the Zanesville pilot was at Charleston, W. Va., where he won the Mid-Atlantic league pennant after being in top or second place from opening day to the final game, except for one day, when the Senators dropped a few percentage points behind Erie, Pa.

Before that he had two straight championship teams at Flint in the Michigan State league. The other five years were spent at Fargo-Moorehead in the Northern league, from 1934 through 1939, when he won one pennant, finished second three times and fifth once.

Pitched In Majors

Knight, a pitcher, started his playing days at Galveston, Texas, in 1921, remaining through the 1922 season. He was at Houston in 1923 and '24 and finished the latter season with the St. Louis Cardinals. He spent two years with the Philadelphia Nationals, 1925 and '26, and from April until June the following year pitched for the Boston Braves, where he ended his major league career.

Then came stops at Seattle,

JACK KNIGHT

Portland and San Francisco in the Pacific Coast league, then Chattanooga of the Southern Association and in 1931 and '32 he was with Des Moines in the Western, where his playing days ended. Two years later he launched his managerial career at Fargo.

A stout disciplinarian, Knight plays percentage ball, expects a great deal on his mound staff and in more years than the two he and [illegible] McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds, Tribe of Knight's runners at Canton, Lindell, among the top flight in the [illegible] league during 1942.

Developed Stars

Knight has helped develop a number of major league stars, one of his proteges being Steve Gromek, the Cleveland pitcher, who was sent here from an infielder by Knight. C. C. Slapnicka, then general manager of the Indians, and the Cleveland club thought so much of Knight's judgment that they placed Bob Feller under his wing at Fargo, the year the Indians' ace recruit star was supposed to be under contract to New Orleans.

When the Dodgers are at home, Knight resides with Mrs. Knight at the Zane Hotel. During the winter, he was employed in an Indianapolis war plant, resigning to accept the post here on April 1.

Knight's current team has been hanging around the .500 mark, after bidding for the lead early in the season. It was recently strengthened by the addition of two players, First Baseman Preston Ward and Third Baseman Carl Lemon, and more help has been promised by the Brooklyn Dodgers, who are operating the Zanesville team as a farm. Ward and Lemon came here from Newport News, Va.

Blunt's Single Gives Marion 7 to 6 Victory in 13th Frame

Lining a timely single to right field Marion Right Fielder Blunt drove in the winning run to give Marion a 7 to 6 victory over Lima in the last game of a four-game series here.

It was a 13 inning game and gave Marion an even break for the series. The contest was sent into extra innings by virtue of a 5 to 5 deadlock that developed in the fourth frame. Lima threatened to end the game by scoring one run in the top half of the tenth but Marion came back to even the count again. The eleventh and twelfth innings were scoreless.

Blunt's winning hit came with the bases loaded and only one out.

Labanara, Marion third baseman, opened the thirteenth frame with a sharp drive into center for a single. First Baseman Minnis followed with another single, putting men on first and second. McDonald, second baseman, filed to left. Then came Blunt's bingle which scored Labanara with the winning run.

Although outhit 15 to 10 Marion batters clustered their hits off Lima Pitcher Kreiger so that they counted most, getting four in the third, one in the fourth, two in the tenth and three in the thirteenth.

Reside, Lima left fielder, started what looked like a wild hitting spree by blasting a long home run over the left field fence in the first inning. He was the third man to face Edwards, starting pitcher for Marion. Two were out at the time, however, and the third out came when Zernia, first baseman, popped to Labanara at third.

Reside repeated his home run performance in the tenth inning, again nicking Edwards for a circuit blow. But the edge he gained for his team was overcome when Morneweg, Marion center fielder, hit and then scored by a hit by Minnis.

The fourth inning deadlock came after Lima garnered five third and one in the fourth, and runs, one in the first, three in the Marion tallied three in the third and two in the fourth.

American Association Pitcher's Paradise

By The Associated Press

Last night was a pitcher's paradise for American Association hurlers. Flawless hurling marked all four of the games, but it remained for 25-year-old Charley Sproull of Milwaukee to turn in the evening's finest piece of work.

Sproull yielded but three hits as the Brewers blanked Kansas City, 7 to 0. The victory, coupled with Columbus' 7 to 3 loss to Toledo, widened Milwaukee's edge over the second place Red Birds to four games.

Babe Barna's home run with one on in the seventh inning enabled Minneapolis to come from behind and defeat St. Paul, 4 to 3.

Big Jim Wilson hung up No. 5 as his careful pitching paced the Louisville Colonels to a 5 to 3 victory over tail-end Indianapolis.

4 ROOKIE PITCHERS WIN FIRST GAMES

By The Associated Press

Four rookie pitchers celebrated their first big league victories today but the biggest thrill went to Al Hollingsworth, 34-year-old veteran of 17 baseball campaigns, who graduated into the 1944 win by boosting the St. Louis Browns into a first place tie with the New York Yankees.

Hollingsworth's relief chore went on the ridge of the ledger when the Brownies scored two runs in the ninth to tie Washington and went on to a 4-3 verdict in 11 night innings.

As Joe McCarthy's clan had fallen before Detroit, 6-2, in the afternoon, St. Louis moved into a percentage point tie for the lead at .571 although they have played seven more games, won four more and lost three more than the champs.

Forest Ordell engineered Detroit's third straight over New York in a relief role as pinch-hitter Al Unser belted Walt Dubiel for a bases-loaded home run with two out in the last of the ninth.

Specs Klieman of the Cleveland Indians also passed the test in the role of a fireman, getting his first major league triumph after replacing Vern Kennedy in Cleveland's 7-4 edge over Boston.

Calvin Coolidge McLish, 18-year-old graduate of Oklahoma City's American Legion team, made the grade for Brooklyn after two losing efforts by turning back Pittsburgh with five hits for an 8-4 win. Dixie Walker boosted his bulging average to .336 on a double and two singles before the Brooks' night crowd of 14,773.

Frank Seward of the New York Giants was the fourth member of the "I won my first one" class as he survived a wobbly first inning to beat Chicago, 8-5. Nap Reyes dug himself in a third base with two home runs and a single that drove in six Giants runs.

Max Lanier's six-game winning streak went by the boards as Boston pounded out a 5-1 edge behind Red Barrett. Max Macon and Connie Ryan belted round trippers for the winners.

Ron Northey emerged from a hitting slump to single home Jimmy Wasdell with the telling run as Charley Schanz hurled the Phils to a 5-4 nod over Cincinnati.

The Philadelphia-Chicago game in the American was rained out after three innings with the A's leading 2-0.

RACING

The "Home In Indiana" stake will be run June 13, the eve of the premier showing of the picture of the same title at the Ohio theater. Important scenes in the movie were filmed at the Marion county fairgrounds last September. The following night, June 14, the "Phantom Filly" stake will be run. This was the name of the story upon which the movie "Home In Indiana" was based.

Serving as starter for the Marion meeting will be veteran Steve Phillips of Erie, Pa., Joseph McGraw, of Washington, Pa., another old hand at the business, will be presiding judge and Wayne Groves of Pinehurst, N. C., will serve as associate judge. Photo finish equipment again will be installed for this year's meet to judge the results of exceptionally close races.

Top Drivers Here

The country's elite in the harness driving business will take part in the meet. They include: Sep Palin of Indianapolis, Henry Thomas of Lexington, Ky., Tom Berry of Lexington, Eddie Havens of Pinehurst, N. C., Harry Fitzpatrick of Duquoin, Ill., Harry Short of Washington C. H., Earl Roush of Canton, Bob Plaxico of Canton, Hugh Bell of Marion, Gabe Cartnell of Urbana, Wayne "Curly" Smart of Delaware, Franklin Safford of Keene, N. H., Vic Fleming of Goshen, N. Y., Lee Smith of Pinhurst, N. C., Jake Mahoney of Toledo, Bi Shivley of Eureka, Kan., Frank Irwin of Baxter Springs, Kan., and Harry Craig of Carman, N. Y.

Local racing fans will recall the close battle between Marion's Hugh Bell and Gabe Cartnell for individual driving honors in last year's meet here. Bell was leading in wins until the final night and then Cartnell got torrid and edged the local reinsman by the margin of a race. Bell has been training at Urbana but his home is on North Main street in Marion.

STRIKES CONTINUE TO TIE UP BAKERIES

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 1—At least two more semi-headless cars trod Cincinnati today as striking bread truck driver-salesmen and supervisors continued their refusal to deliver to groceries, hotels and restaurants pending a war labor board hearing in Cleveland Friday.

Bread still was available in limited quantities from chain stores and supermarkets with their own baking facilities, and from small neighborhood bakeries, but no bread went to other establishments, except hospitals and military posts.

The strike, affecting 12 bakeries here and one in Hamilton, O., began Monday as a result of a bakery appeal of wage increases approved by the WLB.

TOLEDO, O., June 1—A meeting of 128 bakery truck drivers, whose work stoppage seriously curtailed the city's bread supply, will be held today to consider a regional war labor board back-to-work order.

Final Program Given by Luncheon Group

At the last luncheon of the season for a group of Marion business men yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. Ladies' day was observed with wives of members invited. Mrs. C. R. Beerbower, guest speaker, talked on "Christ Exciting Men," giving illustrations of "excitement" with the story of his birth, of his life and its influence through the years. Indicating that Christ is the "rock of cleavage whereby the loyalties of men are divided," she showed that men today whose loyalties are not with him have created confusion resulting in the excitement of the present war-torn world. C. Z. Zachman arranged the program. The group will meet again in the fall.

Rev. Hertzler Talks to Y's Men's Club

Rev. E. M. Hertzler, president of the Marion county council of churches, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Y's Men's club Wednesday night.

William Isaly gave a report of plans for the refreshment stand to be managed by the club at the races to be held at the fairgrounds beginning next Thursday. Proceeds will go toward the club's charitable projects. Members of the club will erect the stand after next Wednesday's meeting.

Colorful Scene, Attractive Gowns, Feature School Prom

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Streamers of red crepe paper festooned each wall and a lattice work canopy of white crepe paper encircled the blue dance floor at the Robinson Ellis to form a colorful setting for the annual junior-senior prom of Harding High school last evening. Variegated light reflected from a large "dancer's ball" suspended in the center of the hall and large bouquets of red and white peonies, together with tall flowering branches, completed the decorative theme.

Some 175 young men and women attended the prom, which was the top-notch dress-up party of Harding High school social calendar. The boys of the class were lovely in gowns ranging in color from pique, embroidered crepe taffeta and other enhancing fabrics, with flowers worn in shoulder corsages and hair arrangements. Hairdos were in upsweep styles and the equally smart long bobs. Handsome describes the young men in tails, tuxedos and business suits.

Elvin Beach, president of the junior class, with Joan Bonnette, costumed in yellow chiffon fashioned with a long torso and ruffled at the round neckline, led the grand march. Next in line was Tom McGinnis, senior class president, who escorted Mary Gore, gowned in a white eyelet, the graduated ruffles extending over the shoulders to the waistline and the apron effect on the full skirt emphasizing the peasant accent.

Attractive Gowns

Green figures against a white background fashioned the skirt and matched the plain green bodice worn by a dark-haired senior and her corsage was an orchid. Equally as attractive was the pastel pink dress of net, accented with a wide girdle outlined with matching satin cord, with which was worn a corsage of purple orchids. A gown of pink marquisette, the full skirt and bodice trimmed with narrow black lace, was striking and the wearer chose pink flowers to match her corsage for her hair, while another dancer chose a pastel blue costume the full skirt being dotted with tiny bows in a navy shade. A gown of glazed chintz with an all-over rose pattern was most becoming to a tall dark miss. The basque had a ruffle banded in red at the off-the-shoulder neckline and she wore a bit of red in her hair. A yellow figured gown was trimmed in narrow, old-fashioned lace and the miss wore a shoulder corsage of carnations and tiny rosettes of lace in her hair.

A tiny blonde with an upsweep hairdo wore a black skirt with a white eyelet basque and a bilgowy-skirted white dress of all over printed lace with a top, deep-ruffled at the neckline and worn by a tall, dark-haired girl, was one of the most interesting costumes glimpsed on the dance floor.

Harding's "Sinatra" Sings

During an intermission, Dick Grimm, Harding High's "Frank Sinatra", sang a group of numbers, accompanied at the piano by Marian Hornbeck. Dancing was from 10 until 12 with the Dick Zahn's orchestra playing the program. Programs, in red and white, were decorated with the class flower, the carnation.

Following the dance there were a number of parties for the juniors and seniors and in keeping with an annual custom a number of the students motored to nearby towns to celebrate the occasion.

Chairs arranged around the dance floor were occupied by faculty members and parents of the juniors and seniors.

The following committees were in charge of arrangements for the dance: music, A. C. May, faculty advisor, Elvin Beach, chairman, Marshall Zuck, Jeanne LaMarche, Don Schaad; hall, Miss Pansy Rauhauser, faculty advisor, Joan Bonnette, chairman, Dorothy Jones, Walter Bartlett and Bruce Nystrom and Glen Martin of Edison; decorations, Miss Pauline Stannard, faculty advisor, Fritz Guy, chairman, Ruth Miller, Nannette Mosier and Jim Askew and Jack Colegrove of Edison, entertainment, Mrs. George Olson, fac ty advisor, James Burgess, chairman, Ann Pennington, Bob Somerlot and Marilyn Coley and Loretta Scott of Edison, invitations, Miss Minnie Winder, faculty advisor, Joan Fredericks, chairman, Jane Corbet, Loren Daniels, Jean Rose Pocock and Joan Shoemaker of Edison, tickets and program, R. C. Dunlap, faculty advisor, Vincent Corwin, chairman, Robert Quick, Phyllis Haight and Pat Wiant, and Louis McPeek of Edison.

Oakland Heights Church To Open Recreation Center

A recreational center set up by Oakland Evangelical church in a building at Woodrow and Bellefontaine avenues will be opened formally Friday at 8 p. m. with a special program, Rev. J. R. Dallas, pastor, announced today. Refreshments will be served.

Once housing a factory, the building was purchased and remodeled by the church for the purpose of providing a center where wholesome recreation would be available to youth and where church functions could be held and church groups could meet. Particularly the congregation had in mind the recreational needs of youths returned from service in the post-war period, Rev. Dallas stated.

The building, 40x70 feet, has a clear floor space with no pillars, having a self-supporting roof structure. It is being set up with shuffle-board, volley ball, badminton and pingpong equipment, dart ball and other games. A gift of $500 was made toward the purchase, a friend of the pastor donated a new floor at a cost of about $350 and made a cash donation, Rev. Dallas said. Plans are being made to use the room for Vacation Bible school classes and to use it for class meetings, church conventions and like affairs. Modern conveniences have been installed.

Many in Pay Racket in Draft Age Bracket

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, June 1—U. S. Attorney Edmund J. Brandon charged today that many of the 137 Hingham shipyard workers arrested yesterday in what he described as the "worst payroll racket of the war" had "taken advantage of their snug position as recipients of special deferments" by their draft boards.

Most of the arrested men, charged either with conspiracy to defraud the government, or with presenting false claims, were within the draft age, Brandon said.

Most of the arrested men posted bail of $500 to $1,000, and their cases were postponed for hearing late this month and early in July.

JUNE MARKET OPENING BRISK

Trading Off to Fast Start To Greet New Month; Gains Reported.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 1—The stock market today got off to a fast start on the new month with rails and selected industrials touching peaks of one to nine years with gains of fractions to more than a point.

Extension of the advance in the face of considerable profit taking was cheering to the optimists. Activity dwindled at intervals after the opening but sizable blocks of low-priced motors put dealings at better than the million-share rate for the third session since April 18.

In the rising ranks were N. Y. Central, Chicago & Northwestern (when issued), Willys-Overland, Continental Motors, Radio Corp., U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodyear, Pepsi-Cola and American Can.

Americans Slip Quietly Behind German Defense

By KENNETH L. DIXON
AP War Correspondent

BEHIND GERMAN LINES SOUTH OF ROME, May 31—(Delayed)—A bunch of American fighting men staged one of the most spectacular infantry coups of the war last night and early this morning by establishing themselves on a high razorback ridge on Monte Artemision, overlooking Velletri.

They moved in ghostlike stealth by the hundreds through bright moonlight and infiltrated German lines and reserve positions.

At dawn today, they were in positions overlooking Velletri, which still is contested.

Between these Alban hills and Velletri, an unknown number of Germans are caught in a slowly closing trap, completely surprised because the GI's came all the way without firing a single shot.

Our position overlooks Rome to the north and Velletri to the south.

I accompanied the troops in their circuitous 15-mile crawling, scrambling and hiding hike.

They accomplished their feat by slipping past German machine-gun positions so close that bright tracers fired toward our side of the front flashed over our heads as we crawled along.

They "eliminated without noise" the few German outposts and sentries which they could not bypass. By crawling and crouching along a snake-like course through vineyards and forests and up almost perpendicular slopes, they took advantage of every possible cover.

STIMSON

air fields, including many used by the air transport command, and the others include radio and weather stations, hospitals, depots and storage bases.

"The tremendous growth of the AAF's overseas combat strength," said Stimson, "with an adequate and increasing reserve, just now is bringing United States army aerial striking force to the planned size and power which assures a relentless offensive against the Axis in all theaters."

Stimson said the service forces are executing the "greatest logistics job in the history of the world," supplying forces on every continent with equipment for use in all climates and over all types of terrain.

In May alone, the service forces moved almost four million measurement tons of army cargo overseas, almost twice the tonnage of May, 1943, and compared with the peak month in the World war—829,000 measurement tons in November 1918.

The secretary said substantial progress had been made in the Italian fighting and "our position today is satisfactory."

Stimson said "these Germans have been stubborn, bitter fighters," who had to be driven back from one vantage point to another, often in hand-to-hand fighting, but that the successes in the Mediterranean theater to date should be encouraging.

Italian Casualties

The Italian campaign since the landing last September through May, 27, has cost 55,150 casualties, Stimson reported. Of these 9,686 were killed, 30,910 wounded and 8,554 missing.

The air attack from England, he said, "continues in even greater force with synthetic oil plants, air fields and transportation in general blasted every day."

Discussing the fighting in the southwest Pacific, Stimson spoke of the latest landing on Biak island off the New Guinea coast, and said the Japanese evidently did not expect the Allied forces to land at precisely the point where they did since the principal shore fortifications were nearer to three air fields than to the landing point.

In a single month, Stimson said, we have advanced eight hundred miles in the southwest Pacific and the East Indies and the Philippines now are "within striking distance."

The enemy has reinforced himself in North Burma and the resulting pressure has forced British units to make temporary withdrawals in some areas, the secretary said.

Of the Japanese offensive in China, Stimson said "the scope of the Japanese effort is yet to be proven."

Forest industries yield North Carolina 110 million dollars annually.

RETURNED TO GALION

GALION—Effective today, J. P. Blazer was returned to Galion as freight and passenger agent for the Erie railroad. He succeeds the late D. K. Davis who succeeded Blazer here nine years ago when the latter was sent to Ashland. Later Blazer went to Dayton to become agent and yardmaster.

ASKS FBI PROBE OF BLACK MARKETS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 1—The federal bureau of investigation was requested by Representative Feighan (D-Ohio) today to investigate black marketing in Cleveland which he said had undermined public confidence in the wartime rationing system.

Feighan disclosed his action to a house speech. A ration board clerk was charged recently with the theft of coupons and truck certificates worth several hundred thousand gallons of gasoline.

"Evidence of black market dealing in gasoline, food and other rationed items essential to the successful prosecution of the war," Feighan said, "has disclosed flagrant violations of the law. Honest, law-abiding, patriotic citizens have become much aroused.

"This scandal is so serious as to shake public confidence in the entire rationing system. * * *

"This scandal has involved high officials and employes of the office of price administration, and office of defense transportation in the Cleveland district.

"In order that the culprits may be apprehended, irregularities stopped, and proper safeguards enacted into legislation, if necessary, it is imperative that a complete, thorough investigation be made by the federal bureau of investigation. I have requested the federal bureau of investigation to investigate immediately. If they do not, I am determined to introduce legislation directing their investigation."

PRICES AFFECTED BY CROP FORECAST

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 1—Profit taking and the pressure of crop forecasts reporting flood to excellent prospects for all small grains affected wheat futures today and prices at the close were fractionally below the day's best levels. Mill buying, heavy overnight purchases of flour and short covering had given the market for all grains a firm undertone during the early trading.

Weakness at Winnipeg, lack of demand and profit taking influenced rye futures which also lost part of their advances. Analysts said the rye market probably was vulnerable with a number of traders believing the rally had run its course.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I HESITATED for only an instant at the request of the guttural-voiced man. Then I spoke with emphatic determination.

"My husband's friend said nothing about that," I said; "therefore I shall act on my own responsibility. And after your behavior when you came in here—I am especially remembering the brutal twisting of this woman's arm," and I indicated Katie with a realization that I was giving her ecstatic revenge—"I shall not give back your weapons now."

May Return Guns

"However," I went on, "if at any time my husband's friend sends word to me that you may have the guns, I will send them to you. Where shall I send them?"

"If he wants us to have them, he'll send you an address," the FBI man answered quickly. "And Charlie Kent won't be here until six-thirty."

He strode forward, but he managed to be the last of the four men as they crowded through the door Katie was holding open. And with his face toward me, and successfully hidden from the others, he lowered one eyelid, gave me a gamin grin and formed the word "Bravo!" with his lips.

Then he and the others were gone into the darkness. I put up the night chain, but held the door ajar on it while their running footsteps echoed down the driveway. Then we heard the starting of a car, and a second later its violent racing away.

Curtain Lowered

With the feeling that a curtain was being lowered, I closed the door, and turned to find Katie, the boys, and even Jim, with his shotgun lowered to rest on the floor but still with his hand upon it, all looking at me with something in their eyes headily like admiration.

"Gee, Mums," Junior burst out, "you handled those men as if——"

"You were Major Grantland himself!" Roderick put in, and I knew that he could give me no greater praise.

But Katie was not to be outdone.

"Dot Major Grantland!" she said scathingly. "He not so mooch. I bet you dose Generals Ike-sen-er or McCarty couldn' have done any better!"

"Eisenhower and MacArthur," Junior and Roderick shrilled in quick correction, but Katie tossed her head defiantly.

"You know who I mean and vot I mean," she said, and the boys grinned engagingly at her.

"You're dead right we do, Katie," they agreed, "and you're all right, too!"

Jim Uneasy

But I looked at Jim, who apparently accepting the futility of "getting a word in edgewise," was shifting uneasily from one foot to the other.

"Yes, Jim?" I said encouragingly.

"I just wanted to say, Mis' Graham, that you were sure fine," he said, and something in the quiet words told me that he had paid me the highest tribute in his power.

"Thank you, everybody," I said, "and now I think we'd better be getting to bed. One thing I must tell you first, however, so you won't worry about it. I told a necessary falsehood to those men. I did not telephone the Coast Guard, and I am sure they will not be here tonight. If they do, come up and waken me, whichever one of you boys is keeping watch."

"Oh-h!" Junior's voice and Roderick's rang out with simultaneous glee. "Then," Junior said, "you haven't changed your mind about our keeping watch, turnabout?"

A Good Idea

"Indeed, no," I told them. "I think it's a very good idea. For one thing you'll be able to waken me at five-thirty. Be sure you don't forget. Wait just a minute, please!"

I went swiftly out of the hall, into my study, and going to my ancient desk, opened a secret drawer in which I keep my duplicate keys. Taking the one to the nursery, I replaced everything, and coming back, handed the key to Roderick who happened to be standing nearer to me than Junior. I always try to assign duties and privileges impartially to our only son and to Ducky's orphaned nephew, entrusted to our care and being brought up as Junior's brother.

"This is the key to the nursery," I said, "I am going to sleep there tonight, and I don't want Faith to be wakened. So at half past five, whichever one of you is on watch come up, unlock the door softly, and come over and waken me without making any noise."

"You don't need a whole hour on you, to get ready to go to New York," Junior protested. "You always get ready so quickly, and Charlie Kent won't be here until six-thirty."

YOUR HEALTH

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Infantile Scurvy

IN A HOSPITAL where I am allowed by the authorities to see some of the patients occasionally we had the other day two patients who had a very rare condition—a vitamin deficiency—infantile scurvy. In spite of all the nonsense you hear about the widespread frequency and dangers of vitamin deficiency, these patients were such curiosities that all the staff members were especially invited to see them. They were shown to both the senior and junior classes of medical students, because they might not get a chance to see another case, at least for a long time.

There had been one other case of scurvy in the hospital this winter—an adult. And it was quite a curiosity too. And remember this is in a hospital where about 25,000 individuals are taken care of a year. Yet in all that number this is the only adult whose trouble was diagnosed as a vitamin deficiency.

The cases are worth considering at length because they represent some mistakes that even yet occur in the management of these conditions. Scurvy is the result of lack of Vitamin C in the diet. Vitamin C is found best in fresh citrus fruits—orange juice, lemon juice, lime juice, grapefruit and tomatoes and some other vegetables. The fresh, or raw, fruit or juice must be used; cooking very largely destroys Citamin C, important for those who howl about a daily intake of vitamins is this passage from Meakin's Practice of Medicine—"If Vitamin C be absent from the diet for a period of six continuous weeks symptoms of scurvy are to be expected. A small amount of the vitamin intermittently may prevent it." In other words, it is sufficient to have some lemon juice or orange juice or tomato juice once a month.

For babies, however, a daily dose of fresh orange juice or tomato juice had best be added to the regular feedings. The medical profession have been trying to teach mothers that for years and the fact that infantile scurvy is so rarely met with is an indication of the success of the educational campaign.

In the case of one of the babies of whom I am writing, it was impossible to obtain any kind of intelligible dietary history from the family: we do not know what the baby got for food except by inference. Incidentally it looked quite fat and well nourished except for the signs of scurvy. But plenty of sugar in the diet will do that.

In the other case, and this is really pitiful, the mother had been giving the baby a kind of orange extract from a bottle. It was evidently old and stale, or the processing of the extract had removed all the Vitamin C. But the mother had heard sufficient of the modern health preaching to know that the baby should have orange juice, but hadn't been impressed with the fact that it had to be fresh.

Since about 1910, when the action of vitamins was discovered, mothers have been so educated to the necessity of adding fresh fruit juices to the baby's regular feeding that infantile scurvy and rickets disappeared. Some of the cases I just saw the gums were so bad I have mentioned, teeth in the mistaken impression appear normal are so outstanding that they were to blame. Fortunately the teeth are not removed, but they were only the temporarily loosened are mistaken for primary teeth.

Trips War Hasn't Rationed

NEW YORK—Watch your step, for the greatest wartime accidental death hazard among civilians is due to falls.

Last year deaths from falling numbered about 28,000 and exceeded motor accident deaths by about 2,000. Motor deaths have been the first cause for years previously.

The figures are from the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The highest proportion of deaths from falls is due to tumbling down steps and stairs. Falls on floors cause considerably more deaths among women than among men.

The fatal step and stair hazards are running up or down, defective or missing hand rails, loose rugs or missing hand rails, loose rugs at the top, worn treads or covering, toys and other articles left on the stairs, steps worn slippery and ice coatings.

The falling deaths are much higher among old people. Two-thirds of all these deaths last year were of persons aged 65 and over.

For ages under five the deaths come mainly from falling out of cribs and windows. In the adventurous school ages among boys, the falls are in diving accidents, from roofs and trees, and some in sports.

From ages 14 to 64 the main cause of death falls are industrial, particularly ladders, scaffolds and roofs.

First river in North America to be discovered by the white man was the St. Johns of Florida.
